

THE CRY OF AFRICAN WOMEN

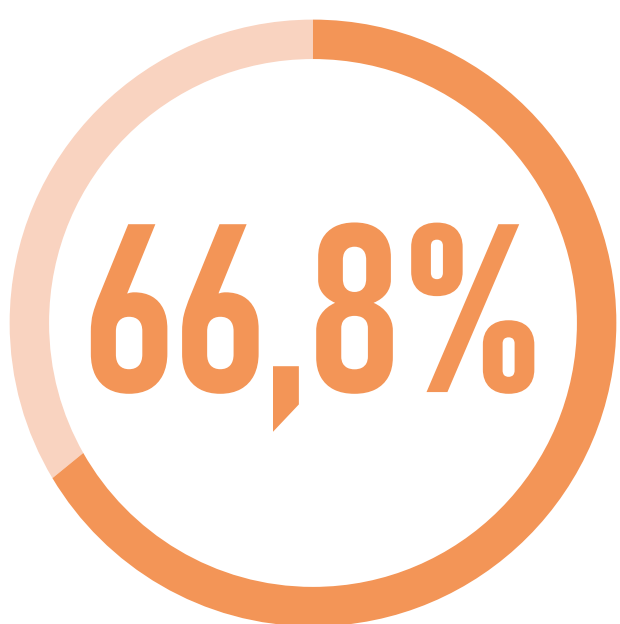

This research investigates quantitatively and qualitatively women's experiences of different types of violence and how this affects the development of their lives. The data shown in this research comes from a self-administered survey of African women conducted by the World Women's Observatory (WMO) of the World Union of Catholic Women's Organisations (WUCWO), with the Hilton Foundation as a partner, which explores issues related to economic, domestic and educational violence, among others.

Listened to 10.790 women

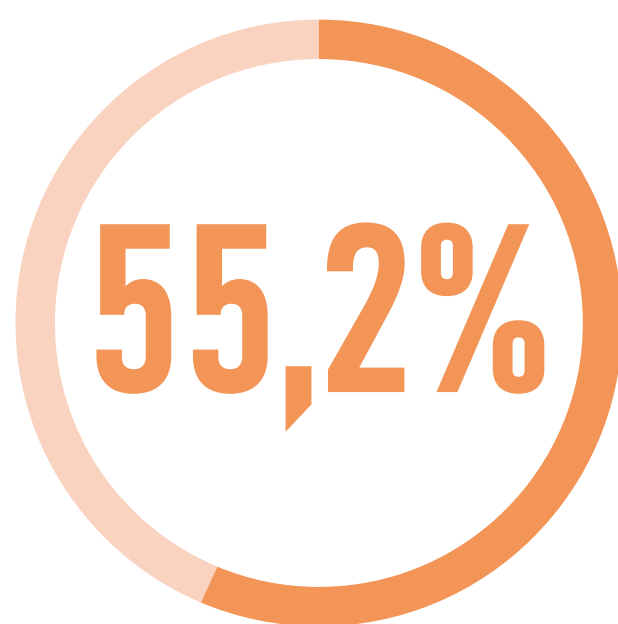

10,680 women through the survey (quantitative information)

110 women experts through meetings (qualitative information)

GENDER VIOLENCE

Structural gender violence

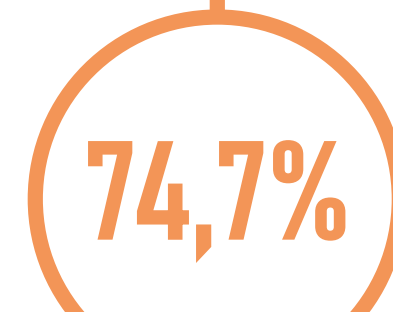

Economic gender violence

EDUCATIONAL LEVEL

Cultural based violence experienced by educational level

Up to incomplete primary

Up to incomplete secondary

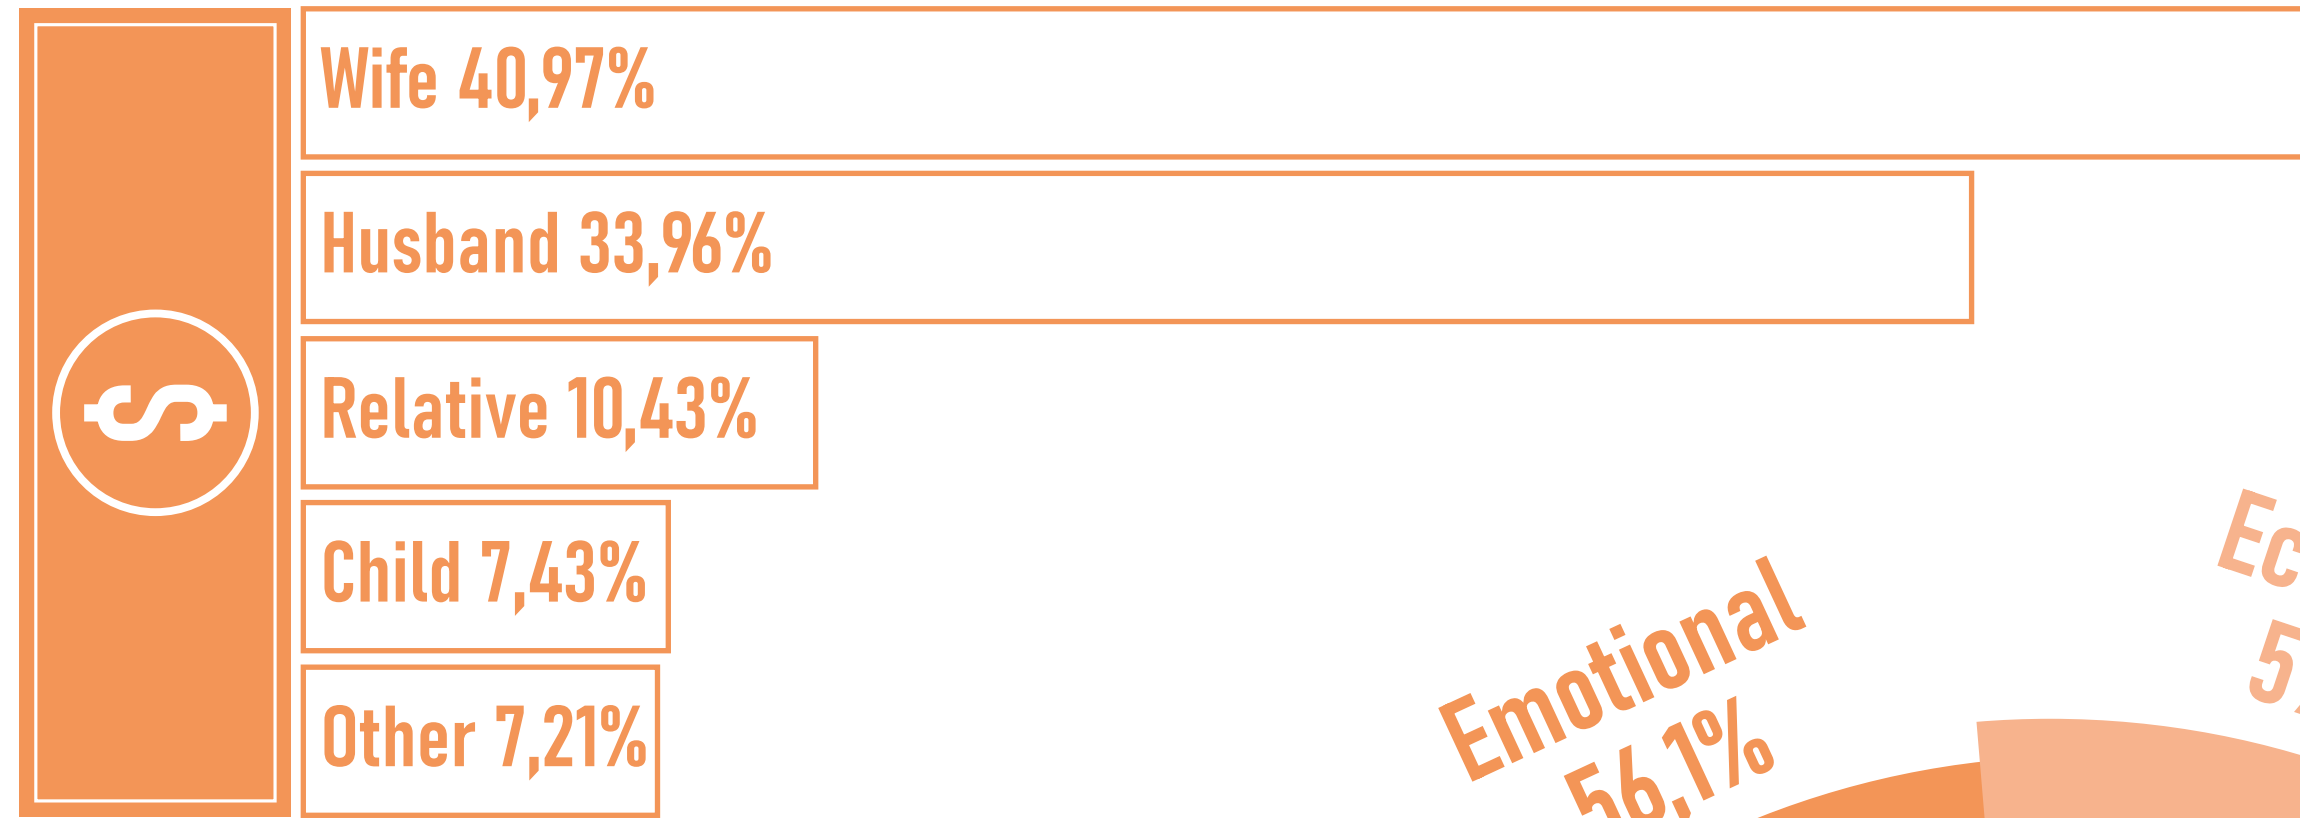

Complete secondary/tertiary or incomplete university

Complete university or more

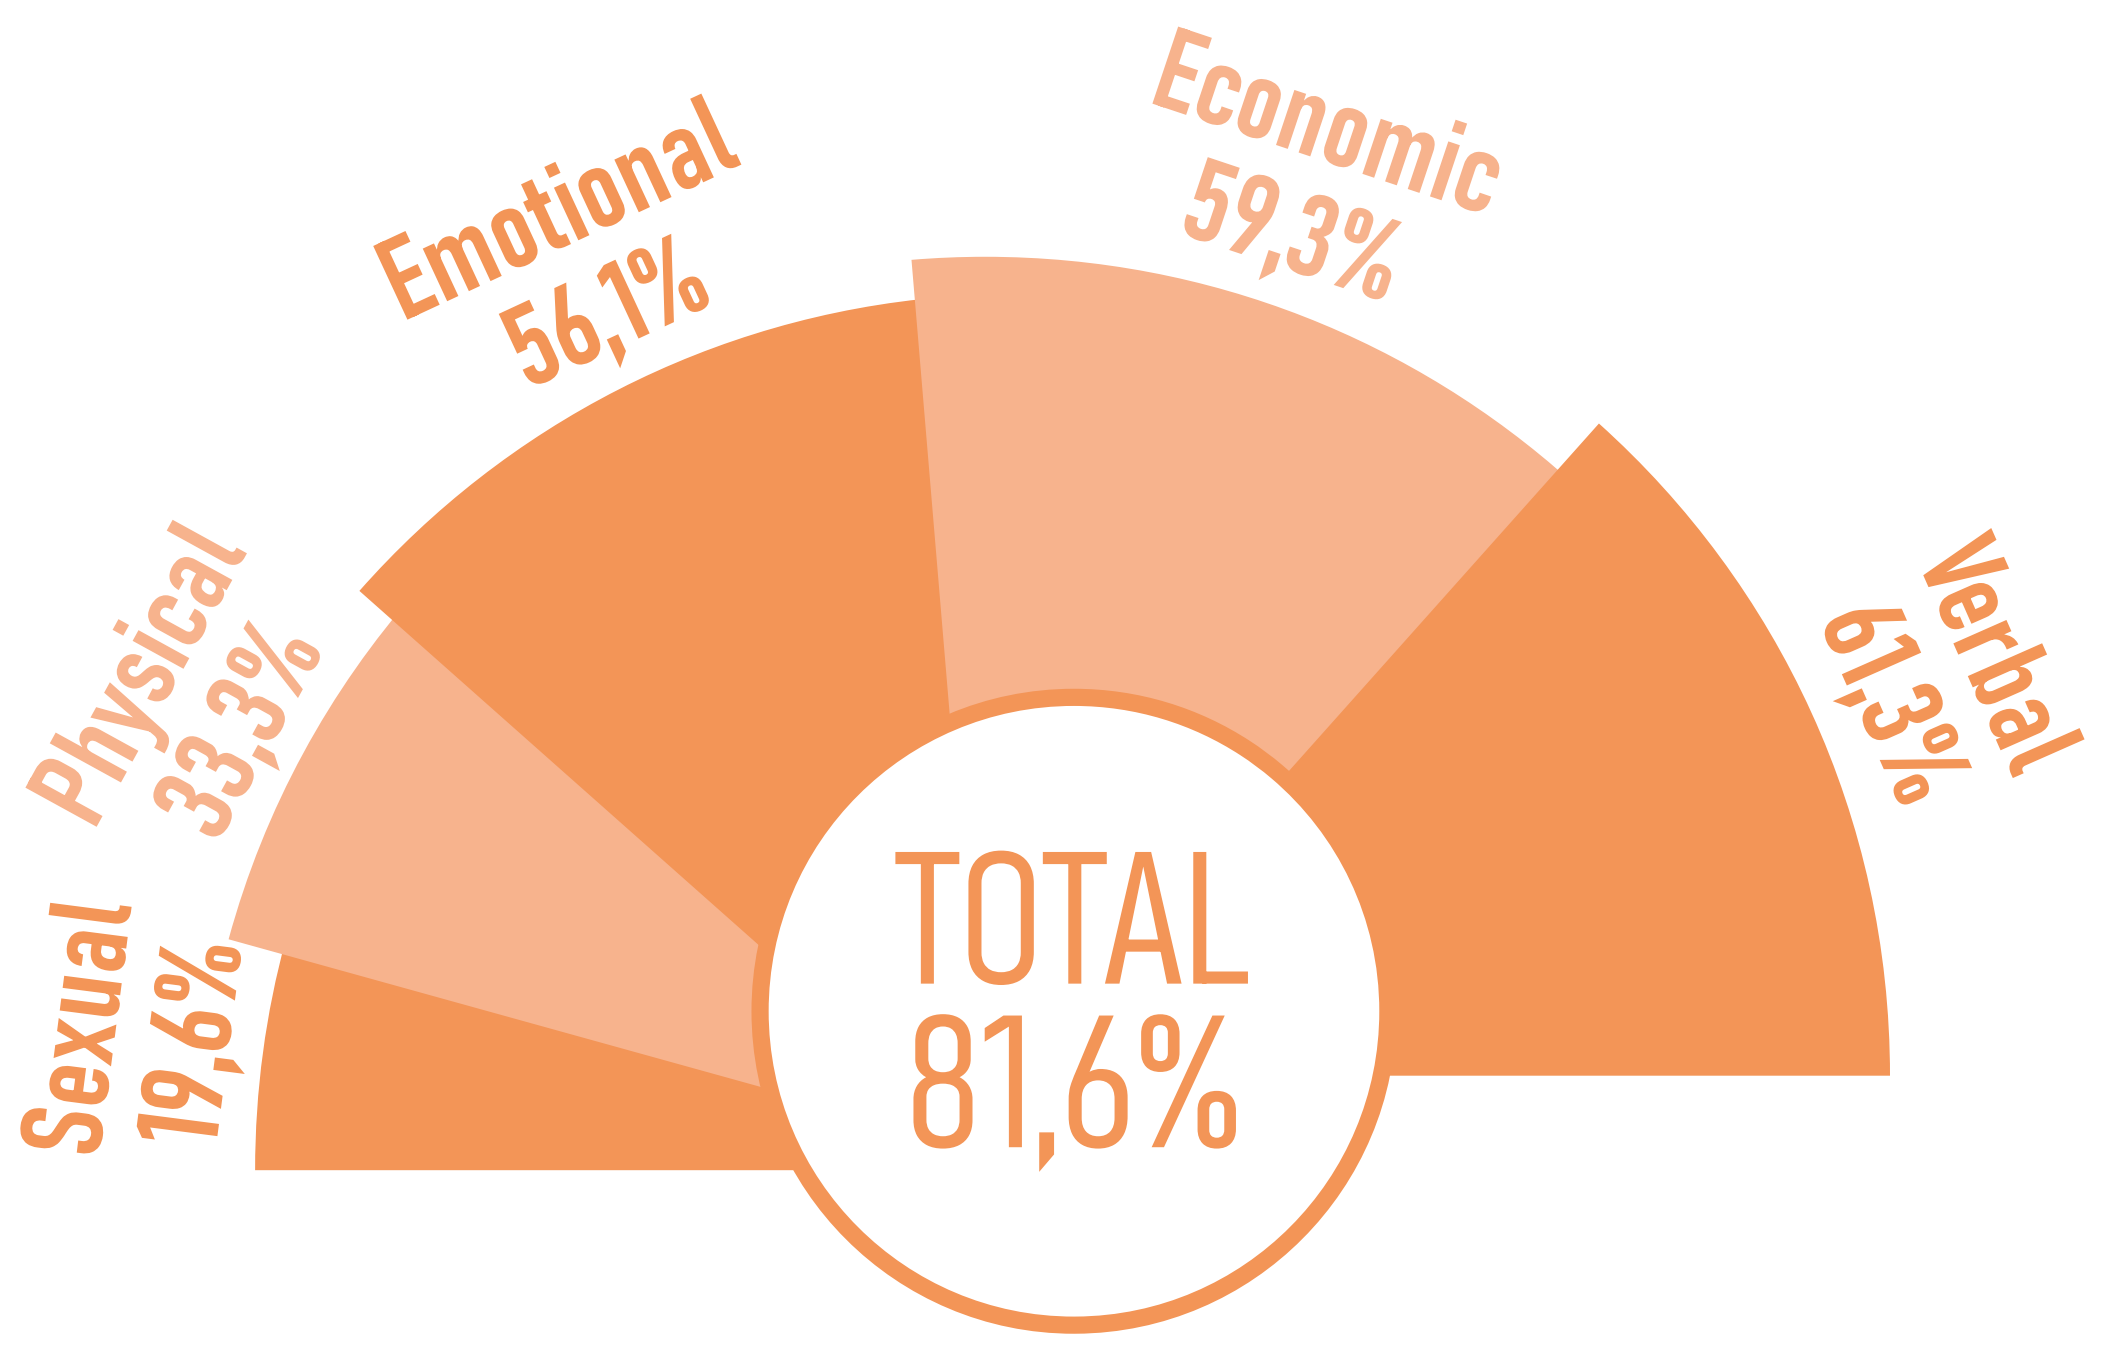

FINANCE

Household members contributing financially to the household

INTRA-FAMILIAL

Total domestic gender-based violence and type of intra-family gender-based violence experienced

CULTURAL VIOLENCE

Cultural gender-based violence and type of cultural gender-based violence experienced

PROPOSED CHANGES

Most important changes needed for the full development of women in African countries

